Connect with Connecticut's Bioscience Community

BioCT works with bioscience leaders from biopharma, academia, medical device, government, research institutions, hospitals and other stakeholders. Through our annual events, professional development and networking opportunities, BioCT connects professionals across the industry. Our digital communication channels, including our website, newsalerts and newsletters, and social media share exciting news about activities and stories that are important to the growth and success of bioscience in Connecticut. In fact, our email database reaches 3,700+ subscribers, providing an excellent opportunity to increase visibility and tap into the state's bioscience ecosystem.
